JUDGE WOODS AND THE COY CASE,

Colonel Ritter, Chairman of the Committee of One Hundred, Expresses His Views.

"Thought you were summoned to Wash ington," said a Journal reporter, meeting Capt. Eli F. Ritter, attorney for the committee of one hundred, who were active in the Coy prosecution, and the Dudley

"Were you cognizant of the facts in con nection with the violations of the election law at the time the Dudley letter was under consideration?" asked the reporter.

"I suppose," said Captain Ritter, "I was in as good a position to know what was going on in the way of prosecuting violators of the election law at that time as any one else. There was a running tight between the prosecution and an army of opponents for nearly a year. I had occasion to know what Judge Woods did, and how he felt in regard to all violations of the law. In my opinion there is not the least foundation in fact for any charge that Judge Woods sought to shield any man from prosecution, but, on the other hand, that he gave, and intended in, every way to secure, the fullest investigation and opportunity to punish every man who had violated the law, and against whom there could be a legal proceeding. He acted in all respects in all proceedings in an honest, impartial way, with manifest anxiety that all the guilty parties should nection with the violations of the election anxiety that all the guilty parties should be punished. I will willingly go to Wash-ington, if I can do Judge Woods any good, but it is difficult to leave home just at Electric Light Chances. Mr. Frank Wunder does not confirm the report that the Western Electric Company will bid on the electric light proposition. He was seen at the Bates House yesterday: "I got a copy of the specifications," said he, "and sent it to the house with the request that the general agent meet me here. Instead of his coming I got a telegram telling me to come to Chicago to-night."

"Do you think you will bid?"
"I do not think there is the remotest possibility of such a thing."

"How many bids will the board receive?"

"Possibly two; I anticipate that the Brush company and Marmon & Perry will each submit bids—"

"Which means—?"

"That the Brush company would get the contract because an understanding would have been reached whereby its bid would be the lowest. Marmon & Perry are controlled by the Thompson-Houston company, the same as the Brush company is." Several electric light agents have been here the past week, but it was to bid on private contracts.

Found a Factory in Dangerous Shape. Building Inspector Fitchey yesterday prepared a communication which will be acted upon by the Board of Public Works this morning. Mr. Fitchey thinks his powers as an inspector should be enlarged in certain channels, such as the placing of in certain channels, such as the placing of fire-escapes, roofs in the fire limits, etc. In these respects he will ask that the building inspection ordinance be amended. Mr. Fitchey yesterday inspected Cones's overall factory (the old Zoo building), on Mississippi street, where a large number of girls are employed. He found the building unsafely arranged in case of a serious fire, and will recommend additional swinging doors at the head of the stairways, fire-escapes and balconies; also a strengthening of the lower floor. The building is heated by gas stoves, and his report Mr. Fitchey will have a recommendation concerning their use. mendation concerning their use.

The Grand Hotel and Bates House were inspected by Fire Chief Webster, yesterday, and found as safe as they can be made.

The Cabinet Meeting. The Mayor and the heads of the city departments held their regular monthly meeting last night in the former's office. The annual reports were talked over and Mayor Sullivan, no doubt, secured much advice that will stand him in hand in making up his address to the Council. It is surmised that Building Inspector Fitchey's plea for an enlargement of his powers, also, came in for discussion. Department Reports. Each department has submitted to Mayor

Sullivan its annual report, and they are now being examined by him. The Mayor will prepare an address to the Council from the reports in his hands, which, together with the reports, will be sent in Monday night. With the water contract, the Panhandle annexation ordinance and the reports referred to, the Council meeting will be no "slouch."

Will Consider Buls. The Board of Secret Works will hold a meeting to-morrow evening to allow bills for the month of January. It is now almost a year since this aggregation entered upon its public career.

THE LABORING MAN'S WELFARE.

Rev. J. H. Ranger Discusses It in Four Phases at St. George's Chapel.

The Rev. J. H. Ranger, rector of Christ. Episcopal Church, delivered a lecture last night at St. George's Episcopal chapel, at Morris and Church streets, upon the subject "The Laboring Man's Welfare." The speaker discussed his subject from four stand-points: The character of his struggle, the contestants, the cause and the

Under the first phase-the character-he said that the labor question was not one of physical force or that employed the power of projectiles. The character of the warfare was not for conquest, but for the improvement of the government, for the reform of immorality, and for the education and refinement of the masses. It is a moral As to the contestants, they are not two separated armies, but they stand side by side. They depend upon a common market. They vote at the same ballot-box, and, with a common patriotism, are citi-zens of one beloved country, brethren in

The cause, leisure, health, refinement, good homes, happy children are all as es-sential and desirable for the laboring men as for any other. It is good for each of these contestants that the other should possess these things, but the laboring man finds himself the possessor of but a very small fraction of them. Therefore this is the cause of his discontent. It is because of an unjust distribution of the products of

The aim is the betterment of man as man. It is a great endeavor after a wiser, juster and more charitable social and moral adjustment of the lives and labor of all men. The speaker then went on to show the conditions of this contest now. On the whole, he believed that it was in favor of the laboring man. "The eight-hour movement is spreading constantly; wages are being advanced generally, and the cause finds more supporters among the educated and the wealthy. The societies and unions are stronger, wiser and more successful. The laboring man does not now seek higher wages so much as he does better oppor-

NUPTIALS MARKED BY A RIOT.

The Factions of Counties Kerry and Connaught Make Things Lively.

The wedding of Cornelius Shine and Miss Annie Sheehan, which occurred Wednesday, was celebrated at Parnell Hall with a grand ball that evening. The dancing continued until midnight, and then the bride and groom, with thirty or forty of their family friends, left for the new home of the couple on McCarty street, between Tennessee and Missouri streets. A couple of kegs of beer were placed on tap, and the nuptial celebration continued with hilarity. The liquor finally began to make itself felt, and set some one in the party to boasting that Kerry Irish are better than Connaught Irish. This was resented by Tom McCarty, who precipitated a general fight. When patrolmen Maroney and Hoover arrived McCarty and his father, Dennis, were engaged in a bloody blackthorn conflict with Mike Scanlan and Mike O'Connell. McCarty, jr., was thrown out of the house by Maroney and was next disarmed by Hoover. He attempted then to re-enter the house, but Maroney threw him then out into the street. Furious with anger, he seized a paling and struck the officer a terrific blow on the right cheek. The sharp end made a deep gash and the force of the blow felled the officer. When he attempted to arise McCarty felled him again. He then drew his revolver and fired, the first shot flying wild. McCarty became scared and started to run, just as Maroney fired again twice. One ball took the fugitive's little finger off and the next brought him to the ground with a bullet in his left leg above the knee. Sergeant Lowe heard the shots, and hastily summoning patrolmen Olds and McClellan, hurried to the house. They found the place in a state of terror, with four or five still fighting. The bride's hand was bleeding from a scratch or cut received in the conflict. When the comnuptial celebration continued with hilarwas bleeding from a scratch or cut received in the conflict. When the combatants were quieted the wounded McCarty was brought in and his injuries attended to by a physician. In company with his father, Dennis, he, Scanlon and O'Connell were placed under arrest. Dr. arp gave the wounded prisoner attention at the police station, and also dressed the injuries of patrolman Maroney. At the trial yesterday McCarty was not able to appear, and the case was continued until Feb. 9. The fight resulted in the demolition of much of the furniture, including the wedding clock, a gift to the couple.

GRAY CLUB BALL.

Bright Scene of Gayety at Tomlinson Hall-Handsome Costumes.

The Gray Club ball filled Tomlinson Hall last night with a very large and attractive assembly. The hall had been copiously decorated in the national colors, and on the stage, fringed with potted plants along the foot-lights, there was a large crayon portrait of the patron political saint of the club. The guests began to arrive early, on foot and in carriages, most gentlemen in the conventional dress coat and many of in full evening dress. There ladies in full evening dress. There were many new frocks to be seen, cut low front and rear, with shoulder coverings prettily narrowed to straps adorned with rosebuds. Corsage bouquets were numerous, matching in color the glow upon cheeks, and suggesting in brilliancy the brightness of eye of the fair dancers. From the numerous costumes in red it would seem the brunette type predominated. There were enough ladies in other brilliant colors to make the grand march a dazzling procession. It was led by Gov. Gray and wife and Mayor Sullivan and wife. There were not less than five hundred couples in the line. The programme which followed contained twenty popular numbers.

The galleries were nearly filled with an interested body of spectators, upon whom the kaleidoscopic appearance of the crowded floor, had an entrancing effect. The whirl of waltz, the quickstep of polks, the grace of the Oxford minuet were scarely less attractive upstairs than upon the floor. Montani brothers' orchestra furnished the music. nished the music. At midnight an intermission was taken for refreshments.

THE RULES REVISED.

State Board of Health Wants to Curtail th Spread of Contagious Diseases.

The State Board of Health met in ad ourned session yesterday afternoon to complete the work of revision of the State laws governing the control of contagious diseases. The rules had been too lax, and the board decided that by revising them and making them more rigid the spread of in-fectious and contagious diseases could be greatly lessened. Nearly all the rules were revised in this manner and two new rules adopted, as follows:

Rule 9. During a prevalence of diphtheri permit of shipment shall not be granted in the Rule 10. Permit of shipment shall not be granted upon certificate of "heart failure" alone, but in every case the cause of "heart failure" must be stated.

Death of Mr. Adams's Invalid Daughter. The death of the invalid daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Adams yesterday, following the marriage of their son the evening previous, has turned a happy event into a season of sorrow. The child Bertha, who died vesterday forenoon, aged eleven years. has been an invalid for four years, never recovering from a serious illness at that time. For months parents and friends knew that she could not recover, yet with all her weakness and pain she was one of those cheerful and bright spirits which won for her the affection of those who only casually met her. She desired to attend the wedding of her brother, and her desire was granted. None seemed more delighted on that joyous occasion than this loving child, who seemed to have borrowed a brightness from the world beyond. Her uncomplaining cheerfulness and childlike resignation have made her memory precious, as well as pathetic.

The Character of Tron's "Pull." Superintendent Colbert feels hart at a statement in the Journal of yesterday referring to the fight between Foppiano and Shaw, in which it was said that Tron (Foppiano's late employer) "used his 'pull' on the Democratic Superintendent of Police." The Superintendent is not to understand that any reflection upon his personal integrity was intended. Mr. Colbert is a thoroughly partisan Democrat and his politics don't suit the Journal at all, but it has no desire to reflect unjustly upon his reputa-tion for personal intregrity. Nor to insiun-ate that he is in the pay of any law-break-ing influence. What was meant to be im-plied was that Mr. Tron had endeavored to turn to his personal account the fact that he was a cash contributor to the Democratic campaign fund, and sought to bring political influence to his assistance.

Obtained Money Falsely. James R. Brandon was arrested yesterday by patrolmen Simpson and Hart to answer a charge of obtaining money under false pretense. He was formerly employed by Hall & Haden, picture-dealers, to can-vass for orders for portraits. The scheme was to sell tickets calling for a portrait for 25 cents, and then even up in the sale of a cheap frame at a high price. The firm went out of existence, but Brandon, as it is charged, continued to sell the tickets.

INDIANA QUARTERS.

Hoosier Soldiers Will Be Well Cared for at the

G. A. R. Encampment. Department Commander I. N. Walker, Quartermaster O. R. Weaver and staff officer B. F. Havens returned from Washington at noon yesterday. These gentlemen went East a week ago to-day for the purpose of securing accommodations for the Indiana Department of the G. A. R. at the next annual encampment, to be held in Washing ton in September next. They suo ceeded much better than they had expected, so many States having spoken before this one. The department quarters were secured at the Riggs House and the rendez vous for the men in the Circuit Court room, in the District Building, on F street, near the Capitol. Commander Walker made requisition for quarters for 3,000. He says that Washington is bestirring herself already for the great event, and that it expects to entertain the largest Grand Army encampment that has ever been held in this country. It is expected that the great parade that will be given that week will be the largest that has been held in America since the grand review at the close of the war. Thousands will embrace the opportunities afforded by the railroads to visit the Nation's capital, independent of the Grand Army festivities. A Judgment at Last. Justice Smook yesterday rendered a decision giving Edgar M. Bosord a judgement for $90 against Samuel Herron. The account grew out of a sale of real estate, which was negotiated by the plaintiff as agent, and which fell through by reason of i neumbrances which the defendant refused to lift. The court holds that under the re-cent Supreme Court decision an agent has earned his commission when the parties reach an agreement, regardless of whether the transfer is made or not. Austin H. Brown Appointed. Clerk John R. Wilson yesterday appointed Austin H. Brown clerk of Superior Judge Harper. Mr. Brown was formerly clerk of the county and is prominent in Democratic political circles. Accused of Intent to Rob. Thomas McCarty was arrested, yesterday, by Deputy Sheriff Hamilton, to answer grand jury indictment for assault and battery with intent to rob. The prosecut-ing witness is Morris Kuhn, of No. 254 West Washington street. The date of the attack was Jan. 3. Old Resident Dead. The court of Justice Smock will be closed to-day, owing to his attendance at the funeral of his aunt, Mrs. Catherine Canine, at Southport. The deceased was seventy-four years of age, and had lived in this county since 1828.
